INTRODUCTION

The reader may rest assured that this is no money-making scheme. The nature of the work is such that no full compensation for labor and expenses can be expected. The amount of time, labor, and expense involved in the preparation of a book like this can only be imagined by those who have undertaken such a work. The authors, however, will consider themselves well rewarded if the result of their labor will be appreciated by the many readers of our family.

While some people object to the writing of genealogies, many feel a deep interest in knowing the names, place of residence, and occupation of their lineal descendants and those related by intermarriage. Such feelings of respect and friendship are commendable. We are commanded to honor our father and mother, and it does not seem to be out of place to go a little farther and honor and cherish the memory of our forefathers, and their descendants. Those who care not for family ties and family friendship often care nothing for themselves.

Family registers, and records have been kept from the earliest ages, as may be seen in the Old and New Testaments, so we see no harm in genealogies.

Many letters have been written in order to collect the material from family records. Much time is necessary to arrange the matter correctly. Even with the greatest care mistakes can hardly be avoided on account of the great number of dates to be arranged. It often happened that letters of information were poorly written and names misspelled, so we would have to guess at it, even with the best intentions of the writer. This often makes it difficult to get at the correct meaning of such letters. They must be read many times, and even then mistakes will happen.

Some families have not answered. Why, we do not know unless they did not want their names in a family record. Some called it "a piece of foolishness".

Nearly everything that is good and right can, however, be misused. We tried to do the best we could with the material we had, and our experience we had in this line of work. We hope our dear reader will bear with us and overlook our shortcomings.

The reader may wonder why Frey is spelled in several different ways. Why it is, we do not know, but we do know that John Frey, the emigrant, spelled it as it is here spelled. We find it likewise in other families, such as: Beachy or Beechy; Borkholder or Burkholder; Geingerich or Gingerich; Hochstetler or Hostetler; Schlabach or Slabach; Schwartz or Swartz; Witmer or Wittmer. Sometimes names like these get changed by mistake and stay that way, but more often it is pride. They seem ashamed of their German origin. Only when they fall heir to some estate do they spell it the original way.

The authors wish to extend their hearty thanks to all who sent in their records making this work possible, especially to Barbara J. Miller, of Kalona, Iowa; Moses B. Beachy, of Sugarcreek, Ohio; Joseph D. Fry, of Haven, Kansas; Mrs. Barbara J. Miller, of Elkhart, Indiana.

Trusting that this little volume, although not perfect, may be useful and interesting to our readers, as a work of this kind will often settle a dispute, rather than raise one.

DANIEL D. FREY and SONS, of Fam. 329.

EXPLANATIONS

Those who are familiar with the books, "Descendants of Jacob Hochstetler" and "Descendants of Martin Borntrager" will readily understand this book. We have arranged it on the same plan.

The families are numbered in order from 1 to 446, at the beginning of each paragraph. The number which follows the name of a family head refers to the parents of that family head. Where both husband and wife are descendants of John Frey, they are both followed by a number. The numbers after the names of children in a family show that these children are married and appear as family heads.

Each paragraph gives an account of a family. Families numbered with letters following (such as 130A, 130B, 130C) were received after the families were numbered. There are 18 of these and 7 appendix numbers making a total of 471.

A name following a woman's name given in (parenthesis), is her maiden name. The birth of married children is given in their paragraph. The date which follows the name of a child is the date of its birth and is followed by a dash and semicolon or period. When a death has occurred, the date of birth is followed after the dash by the date of death.

We have provided only one index, which will be found in the back of this book. In this index each family appears twice. Once with the name of the descendant first, followed by its marriage partner and again just reversed. The numbers following the names in the index refer to families or paragraphs, not pages.

The names of states and months are abbreviated. The following abbreviations are also used: married, m.; born, b.; died, d.; daughter, dau.; family, fam.; Justice of the Peace, J. P.; Bishop, Bish.; Preacher, Pre.; Reverend, Rev.; County, Co.; Township, Twp.

The descendants of John Frey and wife, in the second generation number, 7; in the third, 143; in the fourth, 634; in the fifth, 1164; and in the sixth, 140. It also contains 35 sets of twins, 28 boys, and 42 girls.

454. On Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 22, 1882, the twenty-horse power engine owned and used by Henry Troyer and George Stutzman, at their saw-mill, on the farm of David Helmuth near Carlisle, O., exploded, killing five men, (as stated by the Iron Valley Reporter Extra, of Canal Dover, O., dated Monday, Feb. 27, 1882). Those killed were: George Stutzman, Leonard Hershberger, Michael Immel, Andrew Beachy, and Elias Beachy. The latter two were sons of Benjamin Beachy, brothers to Moses of fam. 248, Aaron of fam. 137, Benjamin of fam. 233A, and Jacob of fam. 197. George Stutzman, the engineer, was thrown about 175 feet. His left leg was blown off at the knee, and a piece from the knee eight inches toward the hip was blown off, and the hip was torn loose. The right arm was broken between the hand and elbow, the left arm was torn off at the shoulder, as clean and smooth as though cut with a knife; it was broken above and below the elbow. His body was naked except the right boot, and the lower part of a pantaloön leg. He was bursted open and part of the internal organs out. Eli Beachy, aged 16, was thrown 60 feet, and scalded some, but not disfigured and no bones broken, nearly all the clothing was stripped from the body. Andrew Beachy, aged 19, was blown 360 feet, and those who saw him, say he was 70 or 80 feet in the air. He struck in a plowed field and the body bounded 20 feet. His leg was torn off above the knee and thrown 100 feet up the slope from the body. His face was much disfigured. Leonard J. Hershberger, nearly 18 years of age, was picked up 168 feet from the engine. The top of his head was blown off, from the eyebrows up. The skull was picked up just half way between the body and the engine. There were no bones broken. The body of Michael Immel, 57 years of age, was found nearly stripped. There was a hole knocked in his head, his abdomen was torn open and his bowels scattered about; the right leg was broken close to the knee and his neck broken. Michael Stutzman had one leg smashed, which was amputated the next day, between the ankle joint and knee. His whole face had been scalded by the steam, and being thrown on the saw dust pile, the blistering skin was filled with saw dust, which made it look as though covered by one large brown scab. He could partly open one eye, and knew and conversed with acquaintances. He was taken care of by Dr. Jacob A. Mast of Carlisle. The regular hands were George Stutzman as engineer; Henry Troyer as sawer, and Michael Stutzman and Leonard Hershberger at all work. On the fatal day, after dinner, Andrew Beachy, and Eli Beachy came over from their home, a mile away, to roll in some logs for their father, to have them sawed. Michael Immel came down from his home, a half mile away, for the same purpose. The explosion left pieces of iron, timber and clothing scattered about. In the mill yard they were lying everywhere, and of all sizes and shapes. Hats, boots, mittens, suspenders, pieces of shirts, pants, coats, and boiler iron, castings, flues, etc. One piece of the boiler, over two feet square, was thrown clear over the house of David Helmuth, and buried itself in the field. One end of the boiler with the flues sticking in it, flew almost directly toward the house, mashing down a rail fence and a big gate, and standing up on its twisted flues. It had fifty-five flues, thirty-three of which were still fast in the flue head. It whizzed within three or four feet of Henry Troyer, while two pieces of boiler and the body of George Stutzman were whirled right over his head.
